*RIDAY...... OCTOBER 15, 1880

The two last and the last two are both correct, not only by usage, but by reason. A corparison may be made between groups as rell as between individuals, and the last two is the last group of two, or a comparison may be made between a single group and all the remainder; and this is done in the expression the two last, which means not that each one of this group is last in comparison with the other or with the whole, which is impossible, but each is last in comparison with all the rest outside of this group. Apropos of comparisons, it is not always stated by grammarians, as it ought to be, that more is not only the comparative of much or many, as the grammars say, but of any number, quantity, or quality, great or small. I have many; you have more. I have a few; you have more. I have one; you have more.

The Chesapeske and Ohio and New port News. [Norfolk Virginian.] It is reported upon good authority that the directory of the Chesapeake and Ohio road have at last determined upon a tidewater terminus, and that Newport News is the location that has been chosen. While we think that the best interests of the road pointed to the adoption of our own city as pointed to the adoption of our own city as its deep-water terminus, we are glad to know that since Norfolk was not chosen Newport News has drawn the prize. The distance from Norfolk to Newport News is so small that our merchants will find that the terminus is practically at our own wharves. The requirements of the road will necessitate the establishment of a ferry will necessitate the establishment of a ferry between Norfolk and Newport News, over which the freight-cars of the road will be brought without breaking bulk.

It is expected that the western connections of the road will be completed to Cincinnati in a very short time, and every exertion will be made to have the link between Richmond and Newport News completed by the time that the western end is finished. When open from Cincinnati to Newport News, the Chesapeake and Ohio will afford as another avenue to the West that will en able us to compete successfully with Balti-more and the northern cities for the trade of that vast region. It will be another artery that will bring new blood to our rapidly-growing city and materially aid in developing our commercial advantages. We congratulate our friends at Newport News on their good fortune, and expect to share it with them.

Graveyard Ghosts. PHILADELPHIANS GREATLY EXCITED BY AN APPARITION.

The immediate neighborhood of St. Pe ter's church, Third and Pine streets, says the Philadelphia Item, has been in a state of intense excitement lately, owing to the alleged appearance of a ghost. Late one night, while some persons were passing the right, while some persons were passing the graveyard, they were startled by seeing a white apparition standing at the head of a newly-made grave. They communicated the fact to others, and the news scon spread in all directions. About 10 o'clock the next evening a direction of the contraction of the seed of the contraction. woman renewed the excitement. She held up her hands and shouted: "I have seen the gbost!" She pointed in the direction of a newly-made grave. A shiver seemed to go through the crowd as all eyes fol-lowed the woman's finger, and murmurings of "Yes; see, there it is!" "Look. look! it is moving about!" Some one saying "It is coming this way!" caused the crowd to fall back, and in the confusion that ensued the ghost disappeared. A young woman, Ellen Moore, was positive abe saw the ghost. It was dressed in white. The earth opened on both sides, as if pushed away by an invisible power, and the ghost gradually came up. She was positive that it raised its left arm, and pointed in the direction of the church hulding. It was most side of sixth afreet just north of the church hulding. It was for which there is great demand, and which the direction of the church hulding. It was most. e crowd to fall back, and in the confusion on of the church bullding. It was ment. so much that she had to shut her eyes, and when she opened them the ghost had disappeared. Policeman Rice states that he be-lieved the ghost business to have been caused as follows: A child, having suddenly died of small-pox, was immediately bu-ried, and, in order to confine the disease to the spot, the grave was partially filled with phosphorus. A large glass cover containing a cross of artificial flowers had been placed on the grave. The phosphorus coming to the surface had caused the brilliant light, while the glass case seemed in the luminous glitter to indicate the rising of a person

Brazil. RECENT CHANGES IN HER INDUSTRIES-

The empire of Brazil as a producing country is undergoing vital changes. Its production of sugar, cotton, India-rubber, Paraguay tea, and hides has of late years declined greatly. The diamond mines are only half worked, and the stones have greatly depreciated in value during the past ten years. A few mines are conducted under English and American control, and by bet-Euglish and American control, and by better machinery and more careful management pay reasonable dividends. The gold mines may be included in the same category. Only about $1,500,000 yearly are extracted from the few mines now operated by foreign companies. Coffee remains king of the agricultural products, and its cultivation has been greatly extended and promoted by the introduction of lator-saving machinery and the building of new railways. chinery and the building of new railways.

by the introduction of labor-saving machinery and the building of new railways. Of this plant the correspondent of the London Times writes:

"There are, it is said, 530,000,000 coffee plants in the empire, covering 1,500,000 acres, to which large additions are made year by year; the annual crop is 260,000 tons, of which 50,000 are for home consumption. And yet, though 'Brazilian coffee makes up about one-half of the quantity of coffee produced in the whole world,' though its excellence has been recognized at the Vienna and Philadelphia exhibitions, and rewarded with gold medals and honorable mention, it seems to be held of so little account in the markets that to insure a sale it has to be labelled as Java, Porto Rico, Ceylon, or Mocha produce. There is room for improvement in this branch of production in Brazil, and it also admits of further extension; but, although coffee can be planted almost throughout the territory of the empire, I was assured at the well-known fazenda, or estate of Baron Faro, of Rio Bonito, near Barra do Piraby, a model establishment, yielding, with two adjoining estates, 2,300,000 pounds of coffee, an annual income of £60,000, that the coffee crops above the latitude of Rio Janeiro are Hable to be withered by droughts, while below the latitude of San Paulo they are often nipped by frost, the most favora-

the coffee crops above the latitude of Rio Janeiro are Hable to be withered by droughts, while below the latitude of San Paulo they are often nipped by frost, the most favorable soil and elimate being found in the northern districts of San Paulo, where the income to be made by coffee is higher by one third than what the Baron bimself can raise out of his own model farm."

There are twenty-eight steam navigation companies operating in the inland waters of the empire and 1,831 miles of railway, with nearly 1,000 miles more surveyed and partly constructed. The revenues of the Government amount to between $66,000,000 and $66,000,000 per annum and the expenditures soveral millions more, chiefly on account of internal improvement schemes, the financiers of Brazil having, as in the United States, discounted the future with the usual results. The annual trade with foreign countries amounts to $110,000,000, and shows but slight increase since 1873. The main drawbacks to the advancement of the country is the character of the population, which is mainly agricultural, and general poverty, yet under the beneficient raign of the present emperor the advance during the last twenty years made by the people in advantage.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1880, at 5% o'clock P. M., for immediately after the sale of W. L. Cowardin, trustee, on the square below.) the PROFERTY conveyed by said trust deed. The DWELLING contains nine rooms; besides kitchen, stable, gas, water, bath, cu'verts, &c., on the premises. The LOT fronts 50 feet on the southwest corner of Learei and Main streets, and is really a valuable and attractive one, and is the highest in elevation in that section of the city.

The street-cars pass in front of the door, making it especially convenient as a residence. The property lies directly opposite and above Monroe Park, and a better situation cannot be obtained. The dwelling is in very good order.

TERMS: Whilst the deed requires cash, yet it is very probable that more accommodating and liberal terms will be given at sale.

M., on MONDAY THE 18TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1880. the above EXTRA AND HIGHLY-IMPROVED VINEYARID, which yields equal to any in the State, and where some of the celebrated grace-wines are made. The soil is fertile and the location superior. The improvements consist of a FRAME DWELLING of seven rooms, three of which are used as a wine-cellar for storage and manufacturing; stable, kitchen, reservoir, &c. There is upon the place an loc-house and pond, which is never dry. The pond is well stocked with fish, and so located that it is thoroughly and well shaded. There is a beautiful grove with benches, &c., through it. In fact, for a wine-garden its location and many advantages and surroundings make it peculiarly and specially adapted. The present owner has spent thousands of dollars in money and thirteen years in labor and time, thereby insuring a perfect success in making this the most valuable vineyard in the State, and, being adjacent to the city limits, should attract attention. The opportunity here offered to secure property of this character is seldom had. Parifes wishing to invest are cordisily invited and requested to inspect the vineyard before day of sale.
